THE NORMAL HAPPENINGS OF A DHS STUDENT

DHS students are NOT normal teenagers. They don't just go to school, work, do homework and sleep. Although some would want to believe this, DHS students have other lives outside of school.

They do things that no one would expect.

There are those that do what a normal teenager would do, but all the students go out and have fun outside the school building. They go to movies, they hang out with friends, some may even have fun at school activities. But DHS students are always doing something during their summer and weekends.

Above: 1. Four senior hang out in Chinatown. 2. Lisa Stoller and Georgie Blum celebrate after a good day at Mudfest. 3. Junior and Senior Girls just hangout at a tropical restaurant 4. Adam Horne and Josh Weis pose after the first night game. 5. Ella Stone holds her first catch of the day. 6. Leslie Roshto and James Bellavia have fun at a cubs game. Top: Girls Pose right before their team participates at a summer camp. Below Left: Rebecca Schur sits on top of a Jackelope during her roadtrip cross-country.

What do you do when mom and dad stop giving you allowance? Many Deerfield High School students decide to get a job. Whether students only have a weekend job or work on the school nights, they manage to get jobs in nearly every field of work. Students have jobs varying from making sandwiches at Potbellys, to being a technical assistant.

Deerfield students can be found all over trying to earn a little extra cash.

GOING MOBILE

Number one on the list of most used technological toys is the cell phone. From wireless internet, to text messages and sports scores, cell phones have become a part of DHS student's everyday lives.

TOP

A close second to the appearance of cell phones has been the pop culture trend of the iPod. From at home doing homework to the ride to school in a car, bike or bus, many students won't be found without their trusted iPod music collection. The brand new fad from apple has sprung up around the school from the bright pink iPod mini to the stark white iPod photo.

2

How do you get to school?

1. Ride with Mom or friends
2. Big yellow Limo
3. Drive !!!
4. Walk everyday, rain or shine

From phones to laptops and ipods, bikes to skateboards to the bus, being mobile means a lot to DHS students. Over 70% of DHS students have their own cell phone, and more 90% have an ipod or discman. But being mobile is more than what you bring with you - it's also how you get there! Students and staff are finding interesting ways to travel these days...During the Spring and Fall, bikes and skateboards are popular modes of travel; during the winter, you may see a lot of students walking from from North Trail, known to many as alternative parking. Staff members find creative ways to school as well - Dr. Fleming (right) looks forward to weather that allows him to ride his motorcycle; Ms. Pataky & Mrs. Killogg do their part for the environment by car pooling, and some, like the Hirsch's and Mrs. Erikson live close enough to walk!

4 ELECTRONICS IN DHS

Laptops, although not common in school, are common to teenagers. With the busy lifestyles of teens, a laptop is a perfect homework companion. From free periods at school, to late night study sessions at Barnes and Noble, you will see high schoolers utilizing laptops. Below: Charlie Jones working during engineering.

This year's homecoming game wasn't about winning, or about who ran for one hundred yards with three touchdowns. It was about pride. About glory and the will to succeed.

It started on October 9th with the Homecoming parade which began in downtown Deerfield and ended at DHS. People lined both sides of Waukegan Road just to be a part of this huge tradition.

Participants threw candy from the cars and floats as the crowd screamed like crazy.

Later that afternoon, with a huge crowd in the stands, DHS took the field against Maine West. Although by the end of the first half, Deerfield was losing, the fans had high hopes for a strong finish.

The crowd cheered the team on through the rest of the game. But the warrior football team came up short with a loss. Even so, DHS players and fans still walked away with Warrior pride and spirit having played a tough game. Spirits stayed high as everyone looked forward to the dance that night.

TICKET PARADISE

For months the anticipation was nearly palpable at Deerfield High School. The stress was felt by freshman trying to find a date for their first Homecoming. Senior girls stressed, hoping to get paired up with a special someone and senior guys desperately tried not to disappoint. Like every year, all of that excitement culminated on one fantastic Friday night. Homecoming 2004 was one killer party. The theme, "a ticket to paradise" could not have described better the feeling in the air as kids from every class put on their best for a special evening. The addition of the popular smoothie bar at this year's dance was icing on the cake to the gorgeous decorations and thumping beats that rocked the Exhibition gym. The dance radiated with an atmosphere of uninhibited happiness as everyone loosened up on the dance floor and admired each other's clothing of choice. Whether you came with your girlfriend of four years, or stag, whether you joined a group of four or fourteen, it was easily a night to remember.

Incognito

Halloween- the time of year to be somebody else - whether that's a vampire, cartoon character, devil or cat. This year the costumes were truly creative - from Tetris blocks to a dodgeball player, DHS students and staff came up with some amazing costumes. New DHS rules on face painting and masks didn't seem to deter the halloween fun. New takes on old favorites could be found, such as the standard cats and cowgirls. New creative costume such as the giant bananas, and s sumo wrestlers were good for a laugh.

Deerfield, Illinois, 30 miles north of Chicago, receives some of the coldest, unpredictable weather in the country. This year January had days ranging from 60 degrees to below freezing. It can be bright and sunny in the morning, and then cloudy, windy, and below freezing that afternoon. On these colder days, it may snow, sleet, or rain. Sleet and rain are no fun, but when it snows outside, the students at DHS go out and play. Sledding, skiing, snowboarding, snowball fights, or just having to wrestle their cars out of snow drifts, you name it, the students have done it. Maybe they like the snow, or maybe they're just used to it—but Deerfield students seem to make the most out of the winter.

Spotlight on...Jillian Harvey

Jillian stands out on the stage and her passion for dance takes her to new heights with each performance. but underneath that talented, graceful, exterior there is a fun teenage girl just enjoying the last months of her high school experience. Jillian attributes her personality and dance skills to the "Leading Ladies" of her life, her mother and her dance teachers. Her mother has taught her to be strong, kind, and empathetic and her dance teachers have taught her all she knows about the art of dance. They have constantly stood by her side and encouraged her in everything she chooses to do. Jill's caring and accepting attitude helped comfort detox and elderly patients that she met while volunteering at Highland Park Hospital this summer. These patients helped give her insight into what their lives were really like and helped her learn a good lesson about not doing drugs. She says that you should always "love those who don't deserve to be loved" because they are the ones who teach you the most about life. Jill has big dreams for the future but to put it simply, she hopes to have "dared to disturb the universe!"

Spotlight on... Josh Weis

For those of you who know Josh you are aware of his reputation as the class clown. With his witty comments and tendency to say what others are really thinking, Josh definitely knows how to keep people's attention. While Josh may be that funny guy we all know and love, there is much more to him than meets the eye. For instance, many of you might not know that Josh is a talented poet or that he has an extensive collection of Disney movies. You also might not know that his hopes for the future are not to be ridiculously famous or filthy rich, but are simply to have a wife, family, and a steady job. Josh may seem like your average, funny, outgoing, teenager, but he also has a very big heart. While most kids in Deerfield were chowing down on their candy the day after Halloween, Josh and his good friend Joey Halperin were going door to door collecting candy for kids in hospitals who couldn't go trick or treating on their own. Weis says he would like to be remembered in a "positive light and having affected others in a positive way." His laid back, non-judgmental, attitude allows people to see that he is always ready to have a good time. Josh is prepared for what lies ahead in college and plans to follow his motto, "Working hard or hardly working."

Spotlight on... Jessica Butcher

Think you're goal driven? Because Jessie Butcher thinks she is- and she has her sights set on finding a cure for Aids. For many of us, it's hard to look too far past college life and career choices, for Jessie, the future is in plain sight. She gets her hard-working, spirited, attitude from her parents who have been the primary influences in her life. They have taught her to work hard, live life to the fullest, and to not judge people by what's on the outside. Her passion for helping others is evident in the volunteering she does outside of school. Jessica has spent time aiding elderly patients at the Welshire Senior Home and helping out with many events at the Special Olympics. Jessie feels these experiences have made her a more patient person. "By volunteering at these places or events I have become more tolerant of other people and have learned that they didn't make the choice to be this way. All these people have taught me how to love your fellow man and more about why being kind to others is so important, and those are two of the most important lessons in life" she says. Jessie is fully prepared to take college head on. She wants to get a good start on her intended studies and is prepared for all the work that comes with it. She says, "I look at it this way, in life we have two choices, to throw in the towel or use it to wipe the sweat off our faces. I choose the latter."

Spotlight on... Alan Mellovitz

Known all around school as the "Tree house Kid", Alan Mellovitz has gotten himself a rep as one of the most crafty and handy kids in Deerfield High School. He says he supposes he may be seen as rather interesting considering "you don't see many kids walking around school with power tools." Alan is also the drummer for the well known band Marty McFly. Alan, along with his band mates, Adam Horne and Sean Brown, has recorded several cds as well as acquired a very large fan base. But Alan doesn't let his many talents go to waste: he has helped build homes for Habitat for Humanity and his band has held benefit concerts for charities such as La Casa Central and One Step at a Time cancer camp for children. Alan also spends a lot of his time doing work for WDHS Media Production and Stage Crew. What's his best lesson learned? " Don't play with electrical outlets when you are six years old." He says that is probably why his hair looks the way it does. Mellovitz hopes his legacy as Handyman Al will be remembered for years to come. When things get tough Alan reminds himself of Michael Jordan's famous words "You have to fail to succeed" and keeps working so that he can make success a part of his future.

Spotlight on...Lindsey Passen

Passing the display case in the front hall of DHS, you're sure to see some of Lindsey Passen's artwork. Favoring paintings and fashion design, Lindsey's work definitely catches your eye. Being as creative as she is, she doesn't limit herself to the easel. She makes purses, adds to her clothing, and designs the covers of her binders and notebooks. While her many talents make her shine in the DHS art department, there are other influences in her life that make her who she is. A big factor that shapes her personality is the music she listens to. She says her music makes her who she is. "My music makes my personality. It makes me act funny, serious, weird, whatever I'm listening to affects my mood" says Passen. Another factor that perpetuates the kind, caring aspect of her personality is her family's experience with a crippling disease. A close friend of Lindsey's family suffers from brittle bone disease. Every year Lindsey and her family organize a charity function to help raise money for the research. Next year, Lindsey will be attending the School of the Art Institute of Chicago to study art. She looks forward to doing what she loves every day, being on her own, and enjoying college life. She wants to be remembered as being lively, funny, and unique. She also wants to remind people that "Being yourself is not a bad thing. Let your unique qualities shine and never let anyone make you feel bad for being who you are."

Spotlight on...Scott Blair

With his athletic background, Scott Blair has earned a reputation as a high school jock but he wants people to know that sports aren't as big a part of his life as they may seem. Scott likes spending a lot of time with friends and is a very prominent member of his youth group. For the past four years, Scott has taken time out of his summer vacation to go on mission trips to countries such as Mexico and Guatemala in which he assists in building churches and schools for the residents of the city. Scott strongly believes that what goes around comes around. In other words, if you take care of your fellow man, he'll take care of you. He reminds people to always smile because ninety percent of the time people will smile back and you never know whose day you've brightened. When it comes to college, Scott is more ready than ever, but is a little worried about leaving his friends and all their memories behind. He hopes they will all stay in touch and have as many good times in the future as they had in high school; "It's not the end" he believes. He wants people to remember him for his kindness, crazy antics, and for being approachable, as well as his accomplishments in DHS athletics. He also leaves a little tip out there for all of you who aren't the biggest fan of veggies: "If you spread your peas around on the plate it looks like you ate more!"

Best friends are ALWAYS there for you. They are people who you can NATURALLY be yourself with.

Dan Brame was not the valedictorian of Glenbrook South High School, but he should have been... GBS didn't actually have a valedictorian, although Brame was number one in his class there when he graduated in 1967. So now we can add smarty pants to the list of things we know about Dan Brame - which he's a talented musician, teacher and director of the DHS bands, and father of three.

Brame's musical abilities are almost a given here at DHS - an accomplished sax player, Brame also says he "fakes" playing the piano, clarinet, and drums while teaching five sections of Band as well as the extracurricular Marching Band. Brame doesn't mind the misconceptions of directing too much, although he thinks people would be surprised at the type of work that goes into music direction and teaching. Directing is more than keeping a rhythm or guiding people through the complicated journey of a piece of music - to Dan it means "having a concept of a piece and pulling that out of the musicians - interpreting a piece through the kids." But surprise! Brame is also a runner, completing several half marathons as well as 5 and 10 K

Before Dan started teaching, he had the opportunity to play a couple great gigs - one with the Four Tops and the Temptations and another with John Denver, both times at the old Poplar Creek Music Theater. Through a friend's recommendation, Dan got the gig, learned the music in about an hour, rehearsed and played alongside the Folk star and R&B legends. This happened just a month after graduating from college and before starting his first teaching gig at Round Lake HS. Lucky for us Dan soon moved his career here to Deerfield where he will continue teaching, possibly until he retires at which point his dream would be announcing for the Northwestern Wildcats Marching Band - because as he freely admits, "I never met a microphone I didn't like."

Diane Dorigan is a fixture in the photography studios at DHS. Hundreds of students have learned the art of the camera in one of Dorigan's many photo classes, or the complexities of painting in AP Art Studio. But Dorigan has had a varied and extensive career in art even before coming to DHS. Along with teaching art at different high schools, Diane has been a working artist for years. Her work as an artist led her to help design the children's museum portion of both the Spertus museum and the Swedish museum of Chicago. She has also written, narrated, and appeared in three programs on the Catholic Television Network on the subject of teaching art.

Dorigan also managed and directed numerous photo studios for fifteen years, working on photo assignments such as set, food and fashion photography. She says what started out as a hobby turned into a career. "I always encourage people to keep trying new things because you never know when you will really enjoy something and can turn it into a job. Photography was just one of my hobbies but then I started working in photo studios and now here I am teaching photography to high school students!" Dorigan has also taught many classes on botanical illustration which also started out as a hobby. She took her love of gardening and turned it into pieces of artwork that have been shown internationally. She began planting flowers that she thought would make great paintings and slowly began to get more and more interested in environmental science. Dorigan attends conferences and a workshop held by the Guild of Scientific Illustrators and learns about nature and the sciences while she illustrates various environmental subjects such as geysers, flowers, and prairie animals. This interest in the connections between science and art helped forge collaboration between Dorigan and Dr. Hoyer in the Science department. Dorigan collaborates with Dr. Hoyer on field sketching with Environmental Bio classes, as well as creating images from the Biology and APES classes. Her interest in environmental science and art has brought her to numerous states making for a grand total of forty eight out of the fifty states visited (Alaska and Hawaii are the only two left to go). Lucky for us her love of teaching has led her here where she can pass on her artistic talents to future DHS artists.

"I always encourage people to try new things. You never know when you will really enjoy something."

SPOTLIGHT: Diane Dorigan

SPOTLIGHT: Glorianne

Gordils-Hamm

Glorianne Gordils-Hamm is not a witch, although she hails from La Ciudad De Las Brujas, the City of Witches, in Puerto Rico. In fact, she is far from it. Her story is nothing short of amazing - moving to the US alone at the age of 18 with $70 in her pocket, Glorianne worked in souvenir shops and even a computer chip factory to make ends meet while she learned English and then put herself through College, first at the U of Wyoming and then Lake Forest College.

Glorianne has made a name for herself here at DHS with innovative teaching styles and exciting new programs such as the one she has begun with Spanish 9/10 classes which she hopes will evolve and continue into an annual event - this program, which is known as La Casa, began as a field trip down to the LaVidita community in Chicago. In this mostly Spanish speaking, Puerto Rican area, students were given the opportunity to work with elderly Spanish speaking residents of La Casa's nursing home programs - completely in Spanish. The event was a success, and students have been excited about more contact with the La Casa residents. In order to build more support for their visit, Spanish students hosted an event this winter here at DHS called "Las Obras Clasicas" - a show featuring acts, entirely in Spanish of course, with all proceeds benefiting La Casa. Glorianne is thrilled at the interest and enthusiasm her students have shown in this project - she feels that these students eyes are opened everyday by the ways she brings the

"The more we learn, the more we find out we don't know anything."

Puerto Rican culture to them. Spanish Textbooks are great, but Glorianne also has students reading Spanish language best sellers - novels that some students have noted are "longer than the books they read in English!" as well as activities as simple as going out to lunch with a spanish speaking person, or investigating something new in cuisine, literature or art. Glorianne hopes that students will see the culture of Latinos through her eyes & her experience and use that knowledge to embrace the world outside their doors.

She's the Fine Arts department chair and dance teacher in school, but outside DHS, Andrea Johnson participates in a couple of different organizations that she calls her "after school activities." Along with teaching dance in school, Johnson is the Director of Training programs for Deeply Rooted; a Chicago based professional dance company. She organizes classes, runs auditions, and creates programs of both the professional and non professional sort. She also runs an intense four week summer program to keep all the dancers up to date and in shape. Another program Andrea is currently involved in is the African American Families Jack and Jill Association. It's an organization created for African American parents and their children (from ages two to eighteen) to participate in different activities such as service projects and small plays for different communities. She says, "It's a good way for people to come together, connect with each other, and have a good time. It also helps families spend more quality time together." After all that, Johnson comes home to a very busy household. She has three kids, two sons and one daughter, a husband, and two dogs. Although things get crazy and hectic sometimes, she says, "Without one of these things I wouldn't be who I am." Some of her other hobbies include cooking, watching movies (her ultimate favorite is the Shawshank Redemption), and reading fiction books written by African American women. She loves what she does and always encourages students to "follow the things that you are passionate about and don't worry about the outcome because it will always be good."

"Follow the things you are passionate about."

While it may seem surprising that Chuck Wathen used to be a monk, after talking to him for a while, it starts to make a lot of sense. After all, Wathen's whole demeanor exudes a calmness that makes him seem like a Buddha - whether he's describing math as the language of spheres, life as the calculus of infinitesimals, or finding fascination in the patterns and relationships evident in math and music, Wathen peppers his language with spiritual and cosmic analogies. But don't mistake him for a new age type - Wathen's interests are more than superficial.

Take for instance the time he spent as a Christian brother. For six years, Wathen was on a path toward taking final vows as a monk. Wathen describes the lifestyle as a "simple, quiet life. Men living together for a common good." And although the experience was an important one, Wathen decided against taking the final vows. Today he still believes himself to be a deeply spiritual person, but that spirituality speaks to him more in the form of Buddhism these days. It is not surprising then; the way Wathen describes another passion, running, as a mind-body link that gives him a life's perspective. When running, Wathen says he forgoes the discman - forcing him to listen to the world around him. He believes that running is mostly a mental exercise - the mind simply another organ of the body - how one treats each, affects the other. His method must be working because Wathen is still pretty fast for his age - for any age- logging 2000 miles a year and placing in runs around the country. Wathen's belief in relationships and patterns could be a good explanation for why this mathematician is also such a talented pianist, although he admits that his piano playing has tapered off in recent years as his family life has grown. Wathen and his wife, a family physician, have a 5 year old son Lucas, and 1 ½ year old daughter, Lily. Wathen calls their life "abundantly full," and his priority making time. He believes in teaching by example, living your beliefs rather than talking about them - Wathen was inspired by a story about Ghandi who didn't speak every 7th day, no matter what. Caught in a crowd of people on one such day, they begged him for a direction, a message. He says that Ghandi leaned over to an advisor to whisper an answer "Tell them my life is my message." Wathen uses this story to illustrate a point - "If you are going to do something, just do it" he says, "If you're going to start doing yoga, don't talk about how you do yoga or how much you do yoga, just do it and get really good at it. This may sound bad, but it doesn't really matter what you do in the classroom, it's how you live your life that counts."

"This may sound bad, but it doesn't really matter what you do in the classroom."

Lee Weisman may seem like the average Spanish teacher but in fact, Weisman's method of connecting the "real world" to her curriculum makes what she does in the classroom so intriguing. For example, Weisman started a program where her students travel to Oak Terrace Elementary School in Highwood every week to tutor kids in both English and Spanish. Since Oak Terrace has a large population of Hispanic Students, most of whom learned Spanish as their first language, the DHS students improve their Spanish while helping the children improve their English. Weisman says, "The program gives my students a better understanding of what it is like to be Mexican and come to America. They get a bit of history while improving their Spanish skills." Lee has since received a federal grant of over $120,000 to expand this program and create more service based programs in the future. She would like to establish a program in which the students work with Hispanic seniors in a nursing home and get to learn about their culture and language from the patients themselves. She also hopes to run fundraisers in the future to help different worthy causes as well as Oak Terrace elementary. Another program that Senora Weisman began in her own classroom is called Tarea Tremenda. This program requires her students to go out and do something culturally related each quarter and report back on it.

Many students visit Hispanic restaurants or learn to salsa dance as a way of exploring the culture. Other students choose to interview a person from a Spanish speaking country to get insight into what their lives were like. With all these wonderful programs going on it is hard for Lee to not bring home her work. She has three kids, all of whom speak Spanish, who support her in all that she does. She states, "Things will get tough but you have to remember that when life gives you lemons make lemonade. Make the best of every situation."

SPOTLIGHT: Ryan Rockaitis

District 113 School Board

Seated: Leslie Hyman, Susan Soderberg, Helene Herbstman

Standing: Harvey Cohen, Ken Fishbain, Joel Hurwitz, Jeff Annenberg

He may be the new guy around the DHS foreign language department but Ryan Rockaitis is no rookie.

In fact, he started teaching Spanish at Marion High School six years ago. While six years may seem like a long time, his love for the Spanish language began when he was only a freshman in high school.

Originally signed up for Latin, Rockaitis got bumped into a first year Spanish class that wasn't as full. He says he knew after the first ten minutes that he would love the language. "I just knew that I was passionate about it." He continued studying Spanish into college where he decided to participate in a study abroad program that took him to Spain. He studied there while completely immersing himself in the culture and fell in love with it. Rockaitis also visited Peru for three weeks this summer. He participated in a program called PAMS which helps bring medical care and supplies to needy people. He taught volunteers basic Spanish (so they could communicate with the Peruvians) as well as assisted in translation in the medical clinic. Upon arrival in Peru, Rockaitis met Margaret Reed of the Share Your Soles program which collects used pairs of shoes and distributes them to children in other countries who would be barefoot otherwise. He explained to her how he had just heard her on the radio (on his way to the airport!) and would love to get involved with her program. Since then, Rockaitis has spent numerous Saturdays sorting, cleaning, and packing shoes in the Share Your Soles warehouse. These serendipitous twists and turns in his life are now leading him to Lithuania as well. Rockaitis, who is one hundred percent

"Geography is Destiny"

Lithuanian, will participate in a Lithuanian version of Snowball which got started after a youth representative from that country got wind of DHS's very own program. Traveling to all these countries has made Ryan thankful for everything he has. He says, "Geography is destiny. Just by living where we live we have so many advantages and it makes me want to give something back."

The DHS fencing team, started two years ago by Donald Pinkus, has become a successful team here at Deerfield High School. The team consists of about 15 people, who learn to fence, and then get the chance to compete against other schools. The Deerfield team is one of the newest teams in the division, but it is by no means one of the weakest. Led by Pinkus, who placed third at the junior Olympics qualifying round, the Deerfield team has high expectations for this year. Not only doing well in our division, but also becoming a school recognized sports team within the next two years.

"Minority Report has been great. We have grown a lot from when it started last year. It's a great way for students to learn about other cultures throughout the world."
-Tanya Gillani

Minority Report brings different cultures into one room.

They discuss the meaning of all the cultures around the world like the Mideastern types of foods and their style of living. Some types of foods are traditional Middle Eastern cuisines and some east asian dishes. Minority Report has different discussions on human relationships and coming together in a group. Mrs. Johnson brings the group together once every week to discuss their culture and experiences throughout their high school career. Although this high school is made up of many minorities in the country, no one is ever turned away because of their background or religion.

"Hockey is a great experience, with intense practices, and even more intense games"
 -Zachary Lewis

This year's Deerfield High School hockey team had a great season under the leadership of many veteran seniors of the team: Miles Sampson, Sam Ritter, Randy Feldman, and Evan Birnbaum. The team runs intense practices every Tuesday and Thursday and drew large crowds at their home games at The Glacier Ice Rinks, Twin Rinks, and at Sentennial Park. DHS Hockey was so successful during their regular season that their playoff hopes are very bright.

“ It’s a good program because you get experience that helps prepare you for your own injuries or emergencies.”

-Vanessa Italiano-

Every day a group of students dedicate their precious afterschool time to help injured athletes. These student athletic trainers are following in the footsteps of Flo and Debbie and learning the little tricks that make their jobs so interesting. These students are learning about the different parts of the body and how to treat them when they become injured. This afterschool program not only gives the kids a chance the learn more about the human body, it also prepares them for their own injuries. It allows them to be able to spot a problem right away and get help (or help themselves) before it becomes even worse. Ask any athlete... they will tell you that they are happy to have Athletic Trainers around.

"Varsity Club has been a great experience. Go DHS Varsity sports!" -Elle Beard-

Meeting once a month, the Varsity club organizes meetings for students involved in sports, often with speakers that help the students juggle their athletic lives, school lives, and social lives. Each month Varsity Club recognizes one student-athlete for not only their contributions to their team, but also to the DHS community. The students in Varsity Club take pride in their teams but also in giving back to others. This year, Varsity Club joined forces with GIMA to help organize and run the Special Olympics held here at Deerfield High School in February. DHS students kept scores, organized tournaments, ran concessions and cheered as youths and adults challenged with disabilities participated in basketball games and other events.

"O*YAD allows me to express myself in a yearbook that can be seen by everyone in the school and the Deerfield community."
-Danny Weinstein

"Our Year at Deerfield" is a thriller for us students. We work hard to get the yearbook finished. We start off with nothing, then we build off the ideas that we have created for the yearbook. Then we finally find a theme that we create for the yearbook which the theme for this year's yearbook is "GO." Then all our students and members of the club get busy working on all the different spreads and design different layouts. O*Yad is part a club where we meet once a week after school. The other part of O*Yad is a class for Yearbook students who put the time and effort in finishing the yearbook during the day. Students design their own layouts, take or collect pictures, and work with the different sponsors. O*Yad is a great way to meet friends and have fun! As you can see, we know each other and get excited to come to yearbook class everyday to create and design new pages. The sponsors, Mrs. Andrea Pataky and Mr. Herb Regan are always there for us and help in time of need and for different ideas.

"The most rewarding moment is when we receive the hundreds of copies of the paper, fresh from the printer with that newspaper smell. It's great to hold that new paper in your hand and know that your work has made it possible."

-Alex Nomich

Deerprints is the award-winning newspaper and a source of pride at DHS. Alex Nomich, the Editor-in-Chief, and the entire Deerprints staff, have worked very hard this year to give students an under-the-surface look at our school. It provides insight into everything from trends to artwork to local and school events. It also covers issues that are broader than Deerfield. Every subject discussed is designed specifically to interest students. There are columns, editorials, and political cartoons among standard articles. Deerprints is a reflection of the individuality and varied nature of the DHS community. Articles are captivating and easy to relate to. Not just that, Deerprints has developed into a very sophisticated and professional newspaper, so it is appealing in multiple ways. Those involved with Deerprints are very dedicated to their product as well. They work hard every day during 3rd and 4th periods and attend a number of conventions and competitions. Deerprints can teach life-long skills because it teaches communication and dedication.

When the screen turns on, there is more than a show to see, but also an experience by which we can live. WDHS creates and produces the experience, aired every Friday after homeroom; with an extended show biweekly after third period. They will soon air weekly on Comcast public access channels.

It takes a lot of time and effort to create such grand masterpieces of television art. The Associate producers create thier assigned segments. Bloopers occur when giggles are inserted where there isn't supposed to be sound. Words sometimes are spoken when its supposed to be silent. With these mistakes, fix-ups, editing, filming, interviewing, etc. there is much fun to be found in the WDHS studio.

"Troubadour is a fantastic place for all us literary nerds to get together and decide what we see as good writing." -Kate Swisher-

During the spring, DHS publishes its annual literary and art magazine, "Troubadour." Any student can submit art work or literary pieces to the famous red boxes. It is then judged and then printed in Troubadour. The board strives to make the book as appealing as possible by not only selecting the literary pieces, but also artwork that may fit with the different pieces. The beauty of Troubadour is that it helps people shed light on their peers and also allows the authors to express themselves in any way they want, by writing their feelings in poetry form.

Teenagers normally argue with their parents over silly things like homework, TV, and going out on the weekends. The students on Model UN not only do that, but they also DEBATE rather than argue over issues that pertain to the entire world. With two competitions, one at Harvard University in the fall, and one in Chicago during the winter, the participants have the chance to study issues that face the world and argue with others over the issues from the perspective of another country. It put a kind of spin on a normal debate because of the opportunity to argue from a different point of view.

Scholastic Bowl is one of the academic sports that Deerfield offers. The questions in Scholastic bowl pertain to all of the subjects that we learn in school including fine arts and pop culture. It is much like a regular sports team in that it is broken up into teams, Varsity and Junior Varsity. It is much like Jeopardy, but it involves teamwork and careful contemplation as a team. After getting the answer they have to race to the buzzer and answer the question to beat the other teams. Throughout the years the team has been very successful and this year has similar positive outlooks.

Swim Guard gives kids in the community the chance to learn the basic skills of swimming. The guards at Deerfield High School have been trained in CPR, life guarding, and first aid. Their mission is to teach kids how to swim and have fun. The kids range from 3 to 14 years of age and meet with the DHS students every Saturday morning. The instructors are able to work individually with each kid because they all have different swimming skills. The children's dedication to learning how to swim will benefit them in the future in many ways. Besides becoming better swimmers, they will develop confidence, and positive relationships. Watching the kids improve and success is rewarding to themselves and the Swim Guard staff. The Swim Guard program has a positive impact on the children and the community.

Students get the opportunity to teach an actual lesson to the Deer Park friends and expand their knowledge of dealing with children. The child development classes have a lot of fun with the Deer Park kids. Spending time with the Deer Park kids brightens the high school students' day. By decorating recycling containers and sponsoring fun activities Earthworks encourages the student body to recycle. The homeroom decoration contest was exceptionally successful. It called for homerooms to create their most innovative decorations based on the three basic principles of recycling. Student Council is a great way to get involved in the school. The students in student council represent the entire student body similar to a form of government. They relay messages through homeroom in order to help keep the school up to date on what is going on in student council. The council coordinates majority of the events that occur at DHS like Homecoming, Blood Drives, pizza, flower, and candy sales, and most importantly School Chest. Not only do they meet and have a great time, but they try to achieve their goals for the student body and make new friends.

Luke's

The annual Deerfield High School fundraiser, known as School Chest raised money for the One Step at a Time Camp. This camp is for children that are suffering from cancer or have overcome cancer. This is a fun place for children who have physical signs of cancer to feel normal and accepted. School Chest continued the trend of increasing the amount donated every year, with one hundred and twenty-seven thousand dollars donated. This grand total surpassed the amount of money donated last year to the camp, by more than forty-five thousand dollars. Food sales, candy sales, bowl-a-thon, dunk tank, silent auctions, donut sales, flower sales, change drive, jewelry sales, and Mrs. Pataky’s hair dying all had a contribution towards the school chest fundraiser. School Chest did an amazing job raising all of that money, but it could not have been possible without the generosity of the Deerfield High School community.

From freshmen to senior year, students on class executive boards lead their classes in fun activities that make the school year special. Freshmen represent their advisories and plan community service trips. Sophomores show off their green by designing the homecoming dance. At the end of the year, the sophomore board does the popular Senior Citizen Prom, where they design a rocking party for the community's senior citizens. The juniors represent their class by designing the junior float in the homecoming parade and the junior section of the pep rally. At end of the year the junior board designs and creates the senior prom. Last but not least, the senior board contributes to the school by designing the senior T-shirt, deciding on the class gift, and the awaited senior day. The First Class committee helps to promote the first class attitude in DHS. They try to encourage First Class behavior by giving away T-shirts to students and teachers for either acting in a first class behavior, or giving first class card to students to congratulate their actions. But most perceive First Class to be about behavior. It is actually the way we dress, talk, and act during special events. First Class has become such a large influence on the students at DHS that it became the new school crest. The crest is now on display on the brick wall west of the front entrance. It will be a sign that Deerfield High School is committed to being a first class environment.

GIMA stands for Girls IntraMural Association. One of GIMA's main events is the Women in Sports Day. They focus on honoring the efforts of all women athletes. For homecoming they put up signs on the lockers of girls who play sports. The signs encouraged the girls to keep participating in sports. Also for homecoming they organized and participate in the parade. The Girls in GIMA also do a great job organizing and running Mr. DHS. They sponsor the spring dance, which flips the roles of guys and girls, in that the girls ask the guys to the dance instead of the guys asking the girls. The club always tries to promote female student activities throughout the school.

Only during Mr. DHS will you see a small group of this year's graduating senior guys trying to please a crowd. Mr. DHS is a talent show sponsored by GIMA that raises money for School Chest. Some of the acts that were performed at Mr. DHS were ribbon dancing, DDR, guitar and piano solos, and singing performances. Josh Weis took the title of Mr. DHS with his outstanding performance of Michael Jackson's Thriller. There were a lot of laughs and a lot of cheering, but all the performers left knowing that they helped the best cause in the school, School Chest.

If you like space, model rockets, and blowing stuff up, then DASA is the club for you! DASA is a year-round competition where students participate in many types of contests, ranging from an egg loft, in which the egg must stay together, to launching a rocket 500 feet in the air, and keeping it flying for 30 seconds. DASA is devoted to rocketry and the building of rockets, as well as testing them to their full capabilities. DASA also goes into detail for blueprinting the design of rockets, as well as doing full-scale computer trials and testing before the construction and first launch.

If one is wise, then he or she would enjoy the WYSE club.

Every year, over 8,000 students across the great state of Illinois participate in this academic skills club. Studying for at least one to one and a half hours per week; students participate in paper and pencil and multiple choice tests at competitions, each of forty minute durations. The participants choose two areas in which to participate that include; math, chemistry, physics, biology, english, computers, and engineering graphics. After learning all they can, they compete against others to see who is the real WYSE guy.

What if you could change the world for someone? Would you? That's what SOS's mission is to do. SOS is an abbreviation used when someone out at sea needs help, Save Our Ship. This club, Student Outreach Services, is quite like the saying except instead of asking for help, they're delivering it. They spend one morning a week planning to help a person or two. They have made lunches to donate, run a shoe drive, and organized huge fall festivals for underprivileged kids to come and have fun. Many of the members have given up the majority of a Saturday to go and sort shoes. At the fall party for the Nia Center, they set up carnival games, painted faces, and much more. After serving pizza for lunch it was almost time for the kids to go, but before they left, the students from SOS read them books, and when the kids were told that they could take home a book, their eyes lit up.

WERCS is a drop-in facility that cares about improving your writing and reading comprehension. Students of all grades can come for help any time during their school day. Community volunteers, English teachers, and sixty-five juniors and seniors, comprise the WERCS staff. The organization holds book talks and annotation conferences to aid students' reading comprehension. WERCS also holds several special events throughout the year. These include; in August, a fall tutor orientation; quarterly tutor training at the beginning of each quarter; and a college essay writing workshop. There is also a Tale of Two Cities Day, in which English teachers dress up as a characters in Charles Dickens's famous novel, Tale Of Two Cities; and freshmen identify them. Once their task is complete, the WERCS lets them eat cake.

Sophomore Mentors is an English-department Program that is designed for one-on-one peer tutoring program. It helps mostly freshman and sophomores with their academics. It allows students to understand their writing and reading. Teachers select the students to become Mentors. The students who participate in this program give them an advantage to excel in their writing habits and reading comprehension. The Sophomore Mentor program is a great way to improve on English skills. They have a very calm and relaxed atmosphere which can make it be a great place to be. It is also a great way to help others, because of such things. All of this makes the students being tutored comfortable, because they have such relaxed atmosphere.

The Student Curriculum Board is a year long behind the scenes operation. During review season, the time in which all new school related proposals are put on the table, the board meets with school officials as well as with their sponsors, Dr. Al Fleming and Sue Nielsen, to discuss each proposal. The proposals vary from changes in the schedule, to changes in school policies and procedures. The Student Curriculum Board is a voice for the students when it comes to making big decisions. They allow school officials to see some of the students reactions to different proposals and assist them in making the school a better place for all of us.

"DECA has been one of my best experiences during my time at DHS"
-Kevin Kelly

DECA turns the young intricate minds of today into the entrepreneurs of tomorrow. The club meets Friday mornings to talk of some of the latest events and activities in the business world. Also at these meetings, they practice for events for all things having to do with marketing, and marketing skills. There are a variety of different competitions in which they compete like regionals, nationals, and internationals. At these, individuals or teams of 2 and 3 participate in events in which a team will create and run an online business or something involving marketing. As an individual, one is given a prompt and does a role play based off of this prompt. The role play is then judged and compared to the other role plays to see who is the best in the business.

-Casey Cominsky

Peer Helping smiley faces abound at DHS. With around 100 members, peer helping is by far the largest group at Deerfield. Peer Helping is a group that helps students communicate well and teaches students problem solving skills. Through sessions and individual activities, members learn to deal with situations from how to alleviate stress to a friend dealing with a break-up to what to do if your friend has a problem. At the beginning of the year, peer helpers guide transfer students around the school to help them become comfortable at Deerfield as well as being a go-to person for any students in need. Each holiday season, peer helping small groups adopt needy members of the Deerfield and Highland Park community and buy them presents from a wishlist.

“It’s very motivating to us to help kids do things on their own. And it’s nice to help out underclassmen.” -Micheal Boyer

There are over one hundred dedicated seniors who are willing to give up their free time to help the underclassmen learn the ropes of Deerfield High School. Some of these things include activities such as helping the underclassmen learn their way around the school, and to better understand their schedules. They also help to teach respect, kindness, and how to make the right decisions. Some of these decisions include what kind of decisions should be made when faced with drugs, alcohol, tobacco, and even suicide. The seniors help teach the underclassmen skills that will impact their lives even after they graduate from DHS. The Senior Advisor program actually starts by taking a one week workshop over the summer before their senior year. Not only are there Senior Advisors in Freshman advisories, but in Theater classes as well. Theater and Crew Senior Advisors help lead theater games during class, and work with younger students on a variety of team building activities.

Tumblers has been a great dance and gymnastics show for over the past years. It brings out creative and unique dances that show the girl's true talent. Their show this year was "The Best Years of Our Lives," a mixture of different music styles. All the girls contributed their choreography to the program. The Tumblers had been preparing for the show through the months of September and October, then they perform it at the end of October. These girls work hard to give the audience an experience of a lifetime. They combine backflips with hip-hop to give the show flavor. During their experiences of the show, all of them had to work together and show what true friendship is. The show was a success! -Katie Davis

Symphonic Band is the middle band among the three different Deerfield High School student bands. The band practices every day during the week, and is made up of sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The band performs four different concerts throughout the school year. Mr. Dan Brame conducts the Symphonic band in a number of fundraisers including the citrus sale. This amazing band has preformed at many concerts including one in Disney World along with the rest of the bands.

Makin'

Wind Ensemble is Deerfield High School's most advanced band. Sophomores, juniors and seniors all try out to become part of this elite band. Along with the Symphonic Band they perform five concerts every year. They meet every day to prepare and practice great works of music to perform in each of their four concerts. Ensemble looks forward to the citrus sales and the great trips each year. Overall, Wind Ensemble isn't just a group of musicians; they are a group of students who become closer friends each year.

Deerfield High School's Concert Band consists of only freshmen. Instead of taking the mandatory advisory class, these freshmen are allowed to work on their instrumental skills, while being introduced to Deerfield High School through the advisory program, which occurs once or twice a week. Along with the Wind Ensemble and Symphonic Band, the Concert Band plays four concerts a year and practices every day during the school week.

Strings

The Deerfield High School Orchestra consists of both strings and wind instruments. The group performs four annual concerts. In addition the DHS orchestra went to Orlando, Florida to perform with the other bands and the DHS chorus. The orchestra meets daily and has rigorous practices to prepare the students for their numerous performances. The orchestra also performs the music for the winter musical every year. The orchestra not only has to learn music for their concerts, but they also have to participate in the pit orchestra for the winter musicals.

The DHS choral program is more than just an organization...it's a family. Chorus is a place not only of shared music, but of shared memories and friendships. From Treble Ensemble to Concert Choir to Chorale to Choraliers, everyone makes a common journey with all the lessons and laughs along the way. Chorus is a place to improve vocal skills and develop into a mature singer. Furthermore, it's a way to find people with the same interests and dreams. Chorus is also another way to get involved in a very rewarding program offered by the high school. There's nothing more satisfying than working towards a group goal or performing for an enthusiastic audience. There are several choral concerts throughout the year, some of the most memorable being the holiday and springtime performances. The choral groups also participate in their community through holiday drives and penny wars. To cap off a successful year, the Choraliers and Chorale will be take their annual trip to Orlando, Florida.

Dance Company is one of many Deerfield High School dance groups. The Dance Company Trains hard all year for their annual performance, every April the group shows off their skills with their production. They individually have amazing talent and when put together their dances in an exciting and energetic show. After school, the bus lobby is filled with the members of the Dance Company preparing for the show. By leaping, jumping, and flipping through the air, the Dance Company puts on a great show.

"It's so fun to start your day with Theatrix. It has such a friendly environment and everyone feels comfortable being themselves."
 -Melissa Channick-

Think on your

When you wake up at 6:30 on a Friday morning, what's the first thing you think to do? If your answer was to go back to sleep, you are wrong. What's better than waking up to 30 minutes of laughing, joking, and just being ridiculous to start off your day?

Theatrix raids the Studio Theater every cycle 12 day during early bird where the kids involved get to play a variety of theater and improvisational games. Theatrix is a take off of the TV show, "Whose line is it anyway," giving students a chance to think on their feet and just have fun! Theatrix performs a show during the 1st week of 4th quarter. In Theatrix, the students create scenes using crazy suggestions from the audience. Many times their characters will have limitations, such as only being able to say one word at a time or only being allowed to sing their lines. The students are then expected to come up with a scene that will leave their fellow members with side aches without any planning time. All of the games revolve around this idea of scene work, such as the favorite, "Movie Critic," where two people play movie critics and describe a scene that other members will act out. Other favorites include, "Translator," "Party Querks," "Complaint Department," "Hitchhiker," and more! There are millions of other games making each day unique with new jokes and laughs to really shake up your day!

“Good Karma Cafe brings the rock!”

- Sandy Gordon

No Audition, no rehearsals, no problem! Good Karma Cafe is a chance for any student to get up on stage and perform. No auditions are necessary for this casual performing experience. There are a variety of different acts that come out to perform, from hard rock to acoustic, from poetry to prose, and performance art to video and visual art. Performers use the venue to test material or gain stage experience, but mostly, people are just there for a good time.

This event continues throughout the school year approximately once a month, with a large scale venue happening at Celebration of the Arts each January. This show brings out students and staff new to the event, as well as the veteran performers. GKC staff members worked hard to create new experiences in the GKC format this year including a Good Karma Cafe SELLS OUT show which raised money for VHI's Save the Music, and a Good Karma Afternoon Acoustic which featured unplugged performers. The GKC staff believes in the power of performance and worked hard all year to create a venue that would not only appeal to DHS students, but also one that brought together people from different places and experiences to express themselves artistically.

The Theater 3-4 class gets a little rowdy in a heap on the Auditorium stage during, "The Good, the Bad, and the STUNTS!"

"Stunts is a chance to get the whole school involved in a show. We had such a unique cast, and it proved to be a show that everyone could enjoy."
-Erin Hickey

The Deerfield High School student run production, known as STUNTS, occurred on December ninth, tenth and eleventh. DHS students produce, direct, and of course perform the variety show. The show drew large crowds, and pleased them with unique performances. From dances and bands, to videos, skits, juggling on unicycles, and just about everything else you can think of, the acts kept the spectators entertained. Besides individually directed acts, there were large turnouts in the Musical Theater Troupe, and the Band Troupe, both of which helped add variety to the show. Auditions for STUNTS occurred during September, leaving plenty of time for the performers to perfect their routines. With the right amount of focus and practice the show was a huge success.

"Stage Write is a great opportunity to show off some of the school's best student writing"
-Wade Wheatley

Stage Write vocalizes the literary creativity of DHS students. Set in the cozily small studio theater, the show presents the prose, poetry, essays, and short stories submitted by the student body. A selection committee carefully reviews the submissions and decides which pieces best fit the show. The authors of the selected works can either recite them themselves, or have a peer recite them. English classes, students, faculty, and parents attend the show during its two-day run in the spring. Stage Write provides Deerfield community with an opportunity to experience the talents and passion of writers at DHS. The recitations make the words come alive with emotion and movement, and audience members can appreciate the hard work that went into creating the pieces.

"The fall play was able to take students to a far off land. It was fun to see the desert come alive on stage."
-Ben Lantow

The fall play takes place at the end of October every year. Additions are held in the spring prior to the school year. The cast works hard for eight weeks, until they put on their show. This year's play was A Midsummer Night's Dream, by William Shakespeare. The play setting was in 1912 Africa. The play focuses on the wedding events of the Duke of Athens. As a group of off beat actors works on a play to perform at the wedding, four young lovers, Lysander, Hermia, Demetrius, and Helena, venture secretly into the jungle. There, they encounter Puck, a sprite, who, with a series of mistaken identities and erroneously administered magic potions, meddles in the love affairs of the young couples as well as those of fairy king and queen, Oberon and Titania. We watch their stories intertwine and unfold as fairies and mortals struggle through similar conflicts, yet true love and harmony prevail. The premous was interesting and funny. There were many laughs in the audience. The play was a success and a thriving hit.

"Stage Crew is one of the best activities DHS has to offer, because so much of it is student run and it's a great way to make friends"
 -Danny Weinstein

Stage crew is a fun way to get involved. They have been the unsung heroes of the theatre. They do everything from making stages to adjusting lights. Stage crew spends a lot of their time preparing for the next school production. Stage Crew meets every day to create the props and manage the equipment for DHS performances. They make sure everything during the performances goes correctly. They are the backbone of the theatre and they get the work done.

This is a great opportunity for students to explore their artistic creativity. The Art Club works on various types of projects; they work on group projects, individual work, paintings, drawings, and many more. This is said to be the most creative club among Deerfield's organizations.

Seniors '05 --

We love you and are so proud of you! Your time has come to leave Deerfield High School. To big schools or small schools, cities or farms, we will be far apart in body but not in spirit. But remember these things. The memories and friends made will last a lifetime. So good luck with whatever path in life you choose to take; whether it be college, work or just some time off, Deerfield High School wishes you all the best.

Congratulations Seniors!

Sincerely,
O * YAD 2004-2005

Dear Eric, Congratulations! You have always been a joy to us, and we are so proud of you and your accomplishments. The best is yet to come! You will be terribly missed next year, but always remember our enduring love and support.

Eric

We love you,
Mom, Dad, Brett, and Dillon

Wallace

Ryan - The best is yet to come! Take risks - make mistakes. Continue to seek out new experiences. Use your gifts and talents to help others. Above all, follow your heart. We are so proud of your choices and can't wait to see what you will accomplish.

Ryan

Love,
Mom & Dad

Waltz

We are so very proud of you, and the many accomplishments that you have achieved during the past four years. You have shown yourself to be a dedicated student, a determined teammate, and a wonderful son. We pray that you continue to enjoy the many gifts that God has blessed upon you, and wish you the best in college.

Mathew

Love,
Mom, Dad, Larry, Dan, Jim, Lisa, Jenna, Adam, and Jessica

Dear Danny, You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself Any direction you choose. You're on your own. And you know what you know. And YOU are the guy who'll Decide where to go.

Daniel

-Dr. Seuss
Follow your dreams: They'll take you where you need to be.
All our love,
Mom, Dad, Corey, and Nana

Wexler

Dear Daniel, Great love, pride and hope is what we feel. Strength, happiness health and success is what we wish for you. We know you will always rise to meet life's challenges, to always move forward.

Daniel

With love now and forever,
Mom, Dad, and Abby

Laura, Loosie Doosie!
Wow, what an addition to our family. The moment you came into your lives you haven't stopped. A bundle of energy and enthusiasm! The way you make us smile and laugh fills us with love and joy every time we think of you. You make our family complete.

We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Emily

Laura

Alex,
We are so proud of you. Your kindness, intelligence, warmth, and sense of humor are just a few of the qualities we admire so much. Choose the path that will fulfill your dreams. We will always be your number one fans! You can put it on the board YES!!!

We love you,
Mom, Dad, Richard,
Lauren, and Maddie

We are so proud of you and your outstanding performance in high school. You are a beautiful person within and without. We wish you wonderful success in your future years at college and beyond. We love you with all our hearts.

Dad, Mom, Rob and Amy

Scott

Wright

Jason, you've grown into a strong, confident young man with incredible potential. You set your mind on judo and became the best in the country. Always believe in yourself, work hard, be a good person, and you will achieve anything else you set your mind to. We love you!

Jason

Wroblewski

Kyle,
You may feel like the journey has come to an end. Actually its just begun! You have so much to look forward to. So much to experience and discover. Stay focused, stay confident. Stay true to yourself, find your passion, then go for it. And forever and always, know that you are loved.

Mom, Dad and Chris

Kyle

Wylie

When you were born you were our adventure. As you grow we read your stories of adventure. As a young man we have shared your adventures. Now you set off on your own. We wish we could go; take our love and confidence. Send Postcards!

Zach

Yastrow

Alex-
As the oldest child you have set an example of integrity, honest, and leadership. You have maintained that ideal through high school in and out of the classroom. We know that you will continue on the path of greatness that you started on as a young child.

Love,
Your adoring family

Alex

Yura

Congratulations Ally!
We are very proud of you and your accomplishments. We know that with your ability to challenge yourself, your grasp will know no limits.

Ally
